LOS ANGELES' WATER SUPPLY STILL CUT OFF

Raiders Throw Copies of Court Order Into the Spillway

Long Pine, Inyo County, Calif., Nov. 18.—(By the Associated Press).—Owens Valley's little "army of occupation" was still in undisputed possession of the Los Angeles aqueduct early today, two days after its capture of the Alabama Waste Gate, north of here, and no one had yet made an effort forcibly to eject the invaders or to close the gate. The approximately 100 men took turns standing guard all night and their searchlights swept over the hills alert to reveal the "enemy's" approach, but no hostile force appeared, and a statement issued in Los Angeles by Mayor Cryer last night made it clear that none was likely to appear from that direction.

"I feel confident," said the mayor, "that the peace officers of Inyo County, supplemented by reserves by the forces of the state of California, will take care of the men who are now engaged in violating the law."

Sheriff Collins of Inyo County, however, after serving the aqueduct raiders with a superior court order forbidding them to interfere with the Los Angeles water supply and seeing copies of the order tossed into the spillway to mingle with the wasting stream, telegraphed Governor Richardson last night a second appeal for state troops, saying he and his deputies were "utterly powerless to cope with the situation."

Collins' first request for troops issued soon after the raiders seized the aqueduct Sunday, was denied by the governor who declared that the sheriff has ample power and that he should fail to control the situation. The courts are open for parties who desire redress.

Chicago Police Dept. is Again Under Fire

Chicago, Nov. 18.—A replacement of eighty or more detectives with policemen who are known to have no political connections was the next announced step in the drive against racketeering begun last week by Mayor Duvall.

While the mayor and Chief of Police Collins denied reports that the chief expected to resign, orders were issued to make no more wholesale arrests by policemen anxious to make a showing. Any further such arrests will result in suspensions, orders said. Nearly 600 persons arrested in week and raids were freed after examinations in which about a score were freed.

The Chicago crime commission, which charged lack of cooperation between the police and the courts, called a conference of judges and law enforcement officers for next Tuesday at which the commission's report on a murder in the city will be taken up.

Head Linesman Denies Gophers Were Rough

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 18.—Fred H. Young, of Bloomington, Ill., head linesman in the Illinois-Minnesota game at Minneapolis last Saturday, telegraphed the St. Paul Dispatch today that the game "was as clean a game of football as I have officiated at all season."

Young, a graduate of Illinois Wesleyan, made this statement in connection with reports that "Red" Grange was deliberately roughed.

"There was nothing bordering on dirty playing and any criticism of the Gophers is a rank injustice," Young's wire said. "Minnesota won Saturday because it outplayed Illinois and is entitled to all the glory that goes to the winner."

Strong Tone Apparent at Opening of Board This Morning.

BULLETIN

By Associated Press Leased Wire
New York, Nov. 18.—Another flood of buying orders poured into today's stock market, lifting nearly 50 issues to new peak prices for the year in the first two hours of trading on total sales in excess of one million shares. So scarce was the floating supply of certain stocks that early gains ranged from 1 to 6 points when orders to "buy at the market" were executed.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
New York, Nov. 18.—Stock prices displayed a strong tone at the opening of today's market with buying orders well divided between the railroad and industrial, Illinois Central and Missouri Pacific, preferred, attained new 1924 price peaks at 115 and 63 1/4 respectively.

The recommendation of the executive committee of the Missouri Kansas & Texas Railway that dividends be inaugurated at the 5% rate instead of 3%, as had been anticipated, some quarters, apparently was well discounted, the stock yielding only fractionally.

The upward movement gained momentum as trading progressed with more than a dozen issues lifted to new highs for the year. The first sale of Radio Corporation was at 45, up 4 3/4. American Ice and General Electric each extended their early gains to three points or more while U. S. Steel Common, Union Pacific and Atchafalpa were among the score or so issues to sell a point or more higher in the first half hour. Foreign exchange remained steady.

Trading on Broad Scale

Trading was on a broad scale throughout the morning. Bullish demonstrations were conducted in several sections of the list but were most effective in rail, motors, public utilities and re-handling issues. Commis on houses reported a steady demand for stock while the transfer of several large blocks of representative rails and industrial stocks testified to the further participation of the professional element. American Ice extended its early gain to 3 1/4 points; General Electric to 5; Sears Roebuck to 45-8 and Savage Arms Western Sugar preferred to 45-4.

Additional new highs included the three Washam issues, Northern Pacific, Associated Dry Goods, Montgomery Ward and Mack Truck. Call money renewed at two percent.

MINISTER HELD FOR QUESTIONS IN WIFE'S DEATH

Officers Doubt Story That She Crawled Into Furnace.

Columbus, O., Nov. 18.—Rev. C. V. Sheatsley, for nine years pastor of Christ Lutheran Church of Bexley, a suburb, was being questioned today by police in connection with finding of charred bones of his wife's body in the furnace of her Bexley home late yesterday. Police announce "that something definite" may be announced within an hour.

The investigation into the cremation of the pastor's wife is being conducted by county officials and police who last night discounted Coroner Murphy's suicide verdict. The coroner's verdict contended that the woman had crawled into the furnace.

A dozen witnesses were questioned at police headquarters during the morning.

The minister-husband was not under arrest, but was being kept in Lieut. Shellenberger's office for questioning.

Names of other witnesses were not divulged, but it is understood they include several of the minister's parishioners.

The nature of all testimony was kept secret.

Says Wife Was Nervous

Rev. Sheatsley last night explained that his wife had been extremely nervous for some time and that she was alone in the home yesterday afternoon. The woman's body was found when the minister returned from a trip into town. He was attracted to the furnace, he said by the odor of burning flesh.

Last night, Prosecutor King, after a partial investigation declared that it would have been impossible for the woman to have crawled into the furnace and closed the door behind her as Coroner Murphy's verdict had said.

Mrs. Sheatsley was 51 years old. Remains of the body and pieces of jewelry belonging to her were found in the fire bed, according to Rev. Sheatsley when he returned home at 4:45 p. m., yesterday after a short absence. He said he had postponed a hunting trip because of his wife's nervous state.

Mrs. Sheatsley was alone in the house, according to her husband's statement. When the four children returned from school, they found the furnace door but saw nothing unusual, he said. The charred bones and pieces of jewelry were found, according to the minister, when he investigated the furnace to trace the smoke and odors.

Funeral of Father of Dixon Man Held Monday

C. D. Trowbridge, 71, residing on a farm south of Erie, near Hillsdale, died suddenly Friday, Nov. 15, at his home. He was a native of Wisconsin, a former employee of Fricker as the first witness.

The prosecution said it would attempt to prove that infatuation for Minnie Schmitt, his maid, who married Fricker shortly after the war, prompted Fricker to slay his father and that the killing of John Nungesser, the second husband of Fricker's maid, also was traceable to jealousy.

Fricker, who is 50 years old, was arrested after the death of Nungesser, last September, after Kampf, a former employee of Fricker had made an affidavit accusing Fricker of the killing of Kelli, Elde, Verde, Fricker's son-in-law, and John Landert, a farm hand, were jointly accused with Fricker in connection with the killing of Nungesser.

Former Governor of Illinois on Crutches Following Hard Fall

FRANK O. LOWDEN

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Savannah, Ga., Nov. 18.—Frank O. Lowden, ex-governor of Illinois here to address the general convention of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, reached Savannah this morning on crutches. He fell in the train en route from Atlanta last night and was injured. He is not so badly hurt that he cannot speak tonight.

He was confined to his bed in his room in a local hotel here this morning.

The former executive stated, however, that his foot had been only slightly sprained and that the injury would not prevent two speaking engagements he had made here, one in the afternoon before a civic organization and another tonight at the opening session of the U. D. C. annual convention.

Mr. Lowden was getting in his berth last night when the train lurched, throwing him to the floor. He retired, believing the pain would be relieved before morning. On arriving here, however, a physician was called and an X-ray taken to determine the extent of the injury.

The former executive, with Mrs. Lowden, was traveling in the private car of L. A. Downs, president of the Central of Georgia Railway.

WEALTHY DAIRY FARMER FACES MURDER TRIAL

Jealousy Held Cause of Alleged Slaying of Worker.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Edwardsville, Ill., Nov. 18.—Taking of testimony in the murder trial of Emil Fricker, reputed wealthy dairy farmer of Highland, Ill., charged with having slain Robert Kehrl, his employee, four years ago was resumed in circuit court here today with Fred Koehler, of Belleville, Wisconsin, a former employee of Fricker as the first witness.

The prosecution said it would attempt to prove that infatuation for Minnie Schmitt, his maid, who married Fricker shortly after the war, prompted Fricker to slay his father and that the killing of John Nungesser, the second husband of Fricker's maid, also was traceable to jealousy.

Mrs. Nungesser, the former Minnie Schmitt, admitted on the stand that she and Fricker had been on intimate terms. She told of her two marriages which she testified, had been opposed by Fricker.

Fricker, who is 50 years old, was arrested after the death of Nungesser, last September, after Kampf, a former employee of Fricker had made an affidavit accusing Fricker of the killing of Kelli, Elde, Verde, Fricker's son-in-law, and John Landert, a farm hand, were jointly accused with Fricker in connection with the killing of Nungesser.

DIXON STEAM PLANT I. N. U. MAKES RECORD

Carried Part of Load of Public Service Co. in October.

A new record was established at the Dixon steam plant for the kilowatt-hour output of electrical energy for any one month, as well as for any twenty-four hours. This highest record was attained during the month of October, the output amounting to 2,163,600 kilowatt-hours for that month. The greatest attainment in output occurred on October 24, amounting to 161,200 kilowatt-hours for the twenty-four hours. Naturally the greatest amount of coal consumed during any one month was also fired during October when 3,784 tons were used.

This extraordinary output and coal consumption is in large measure attributed to the fact that the Dixon steam plant was, in addition to carrying its proportionate share of the demand of the Illinois Northern Utilities Company territory, serving as a standby plant for the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois. This was caused by a serious break-down in the Waukegan plant of the latter company and continued over ten days. This experience demonstrates the importance of the ability to interchange power between the two companies and also shows that the much vaunted "super-power" is existent and not something of the remote future.

Walnut Farmer is Heir to Fortune in New York

Chance reading of a publication notice in a Kankakee paper by a friend brought Samuel Lilly, a Walnut farmer, a fortune which is estimated at $50,000. Mr. Lilly employed an attorney who went to New York to represent him and he succeeded in conclusively establishing Mr. Lilly's identity and the court immediately declared him the sole heir of Mary Rogers, a sister of Mr. Lilly's mother, now deceased.

In 1887 Lilly was apprenticed to John McDonald of Walnut by an orphanage of New York and he lost all contact with relatives. His aunt had been dead three years and the estate was about to be closed. A cousin had been appointed administrator. The proof of kinship of Lilly was a decision at once without taking the case under advisement.

Mr. Lilly is a tenant on the Woolley farm between Walnut and Ohio, in Bureau county. He is 49 years of age.

Agriculture Commission is Getting Down to Work

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, Nov. 18.—With preliminary formalities completed, members of President Coolidge's agriculture commission had the way clear today for laying the foundation for a program which administration officials hope will point the way toward restoration of agriculture to a basis of economic equality with other industries. At its first meeting yesterday, held behind closed doors at the Department of Agriculture, the commission adopted a preliminary plan of procedure and decided that the best method of formulating constructive recommendations in time for consideration at the impending session of congress would be to study the whole farm question, with pending legislation, present laws and scientific education of the farmer as a working chart.

With the assurance of Mr. Coolidge that no restrictions will be placed on them, members of the commission agreed to lay their entire time for several weeks at least in studying the agricultural situation from top to bottom.

NEARLY THOUSAND PARTOOK OF MEALS AND HEARD SPEECH

Goodfellowship Manifest Throughout Entire Night's Affair.

Last night witnessed the largest gathering of Dixon citizens and farmers that has ever been brought together for one occasion in the city of Dixon. The Farmers' banquet was a tremendous success. It is doubtful if anything has ever been done by Dixon which has shown their regard for the friendship and co-operation of the rural citizens of the community to the extent last evening's banquet and entertainment did. The citizens of Dixon were out 100 per cent to welcome every farmer to the big Farmers' banquet and evening's entertainment. The citizens of Dixon and the farmers realize that if they are both to succeed there must be co-operation and this has been already demonstrated but after last night's entertainment a more complete understanding will be manifested. For miles around came the visitors and by five o'clock Dixon was completely filled up with farmers. It was truly a real home coming, a happy reunion for many months and all were rejoiced in the chance to gather together at one time and one place in a spirit of goodfellowship. Farmers were standing in little groups on the street corners, were seen together in various places of business laughing and chatting with the business men and all were enjoying themselves and occasionally an outburst of laughter would be heard when someone would recall an old story or old story. Every available parking space was filled and the few hitching posts that are left were used to advantage. Chief of Police Van Bibber, and the entire police force were out helping the farmers in every possible way.

Not an Idle Moment

The Chamber of Commerce was the central meeting place where friends met each other and where all questions were cheerfully answered and where little changes in assignments here and there that made it possible for groups to be together. Replacing tickets that were misplaced or left at home and last of all issuing tickets for those that had decided at the last minute to take advantage of the Farmers' banquet and evening's entertainment. Every farmer was taken care of even though he had not sent in his reservation and as the hour arrived for the banquet, 6:45, every farmer and citizen of Dixon who was taking part were on hand and proceeded to the banquet rooms in the various places. Everything went off like clock work, not a single mistake was made, and from the time the farmers and citizens of Dixon seated themselves at the banquet tables until they left the Dixon Theater at 10:30 there was not a single idle moment, something good was recalled, a business card was forgotten and there were no dull worries or troubles present. There could not be for every one was enjoying himself and seeing that everyone else was having the same good time. It is impossible to describe the warm feeling that existed between all those present, that spirit of Goodfellowship.

Promptly at 6:45 the banquet was served in the Elks Club, where over three hundred were seated and the Presbyterians, the Methodist Church, the Lutheran Church, and the Episcopal Church. A thousand farmers and citizens of Dixon all feasting together in these various places and each adding something to make the evening complete. The program in every place was exactly the same and the banquet started by all singing America, invocations by ministers of the various churches of Dixon, from there on until the banquet was over, singing, short snappy talks and other little things that make the banquet hour pass entirely too soon. Promptly at the hour for adjournment to the Dixon Theater the various places were let out and as one group arrived at the Theater and were seated another group would arrive so that there was no congestion or confusion at any time. Everything was timed to the minute and up to the last minute was found from start to finish. As the last group arrived at the Theater the Dixon Theater orchestra began playing popular numbers that added to the warm feeling that prevailed throughout the entire theater.

Leland Presided

The guests were welcomed by Alfred Leland, President of the Chamber of Commerce, who in a few words told them of the appreciation of the Dixon business men in having them present and of the community of interest which we all know exists between town and country. The happiness and prosperity of both sections being interdependent and necessary for both if either is to benefit.

SAYS INSPECTOR FURNISHED DATA ON MONEY MAIL

Another Confessed Mail Robber Tells His Story Today.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, Nov. 18.—Plans for a million dollar mail robbery in Chicago were first discussed in Kansas City on January 10, it was testified today by Joe Newton, 32 years old, "kid" of the four Newton brothers who have pleaded guilty in connection with the $2,000,000 mail train robbery at Rondout, Ill., on June 12, last.

Joe took the stand today and gave supplemental details to the story told by his brother Jesse.

Joe said James Murray, a defendant with William J. Faby, former post office inspector here, and Walter M. Comb, is on trial charged with conspiracy in connection with the robbery, understood Murray had information from a postal inspector.

He said he and Willis, Willie and Jesse Newton met Brent Glasscock and Herbert Holliday, the latter of Kansas City, all of whom have pleaded guilty, on January 10.

"Glasscock said Murray had a big mail job for us to pull off in Chicago and he said some post office inspector was going to give Murray the dope," Joe testified.

There was another meeting in Chicago a month later, young Newton continued, and they were told Murray had seen the inspector in question. The plan was to rob a mail truck he explained.

There was another meeting of the band on April 19 in Chicago and the truck hold-up was postponed, 6:45 April 23 Willis Newton reported everything ready and the holdup was planned for the next night.

Newton told how the band went to the scene selected for the robbery and Willis Newton left them. In his absence the mail truck passed but no robbery was done. When Willis returned, the witness said, he said that he had seen Murray and the inspector who were in an automobile around the corner. A second plan to rob a mail truck at the same place failed for the same reason.

Second Plan Felt Through.

When his brother returned, Joe said, he told them "that Murray told him there was a lot of money going on a train down to Indianapolis and that it would get there about 1 or 1:40 o'clock in the morning. We all went down there to hold it up and Glasscock came back to see Murray and find out when the money was going to leave."

The Indianapolis train also fell through, Newton continued, and the band returned to Chicago and although Glasscock reported that the money was to have transferred at Danville instead of Indianapolis, nothing further was done and the Rondout robbery plan then was taken up.

Murray received information from the unnamed postoffice inspector in what car the registered mail would be placed, Newton said.

"Holliday and I went to Milwaukee and watched them unload the mail," the witness said. "We found that while the inspector had said was right, Newton then described the robbery, but in less detail than his brother and the railway mail clerks previously related it.

D. & E. electric lines, both in the city and the suburban service to Sterling.

Off this large room on the east side of the building is the office of W. D. Hart, general contracting agent, and Arthur Nelson, superintendent of meters. On the west side are the offices of the security sales department, and the cashier's and auditing departments.

536 Miles of Lines

In the rear of the first floor, Charles J. Finley, system operator, has his offices. This department is especially interesting. Mr. Finley having planned and constructed an electrically operated man showing all of the company's transmission lines. The board which is 5 by 12 feet in dimensions, represents 536 miles of transmission lines, one mile being represented by one inch on the board. Colored lines and lights are used, visualizing the actual situation in service.

Offices of G. C. Graft, statistician; P. E. Crawford, claim agent; Ben Smith, superintendent of the Sterling, Dixon & Eastern railway; a stationary supplies department; ladies' rest room and cloak room are provided.

Large Meeting Room

A large assembly room is provided on the rear of the second floor for the holding of meetings and conferences as well as educational classes for employees. This is equipped with knock-down tables and folding chairs affording a seating capacity of 150 persons. A model kitchenette has been built in, and this is to be fully equipped with service for luncheons. Rest rooms are in connection with this important department.

On the west side of the spacious hallway is to be found the headquarters of the operating department under the supervision of A. N. Richardson. In this department are desks of C. H. Stackpole, Robert Ayres and Harold Bartholomew, connected with this department. L. G. Adams, superintendent of the gas engineering department is also quartered on second floor.

The building is finished throughout in natural oak. The wall decorations are in light green with cream ceilings, affording ample natural light and the semi-direct system of electric lighting has been installed throughout. The building is fireproof in every way, the construction being of steel and concrete.

UNCLE SAM, MOVIE MAGNATE.

Some of the leading moving picture stars and producers content themselves with putting out one big picture a year. Uncle Sam, who has become a real movie magnate, is turning out his pictures at the rate of one every other week. He hires fairly good actors and takes his pick of the country's loveliest scenery. Then he shoots, and the resulting films are said to thrill millions of observers every day.

The pictures range from one-reel fillers to seven-reel thrillers. The titles are as varied as the pictures, including such interesting ones as "Out of the Shadows," "Behind the Breakfast Plate," "Red Enemy," "Garden Gold," "The Modern Pied Piper" and "Anne's Egrette." People, animals, mountains, and even tiny insects take part in these photographs.

The pictures are instructive as well as beautiful and interesting. Lieut. Lowell Smith, who commanded the American round-the-world flight, is the star in "Red Enemy," in which he appears as leader of an airplane squadron on forest patrol duty. They find a forest fire and discover that a camping party is trapped in the burning area. Thrilling fire-fighting follows, and the rescue of the threatened people makes the happy ending.

By watching for Uncle Sam's movies the citizen can learn in a comfortable way a good deal about many interesting things. He will enjoy much sheer entertainment. This is proved by the fact that the demand for such pictures is already greater than the supply. Theaters, schools, colleges, churches and all sorts of community organizations apply for them. There is now a government moving picture office and studio in Washington, equipped with the very finest machinery for the work.

CHURCH AND COMMUNITY.

"The church," we are told often nowadays, "has lost its power. The life has gone out of it. It is no longer a force in the community. Its day is past."

Consider, then, the situation in the thriving little city of Cape Girardeau, Mo., which according to a national directory has 10,000 people and numerous flour mills, foundries, factories making cigars, handles, boxes, threshing machines and staves, cooperage works, stone crushers, brick and lumber yards, cement works, and the usual outfit of stores, banks and other business institutions.

The stranger arriving there is greeted by a big sign opposite the handsome union station, reading: "Cape Girardeau—a city of churches, schools and substantial business institutions, where the home is paramount and where the church is the foundation of the community life."

That church item challenges attention. The inquiring visitor soon discovers that it is no mere idle boast or sentimental touch. The citizens have united in a movement to make the church really dominant in the life of their city.

They have a fund for that purpose, raised by public subscription. They set forth the claims of their religious institutions in three illuminated signboards and in systematic newspaper advertising the year 'round. Once a year the daily papers give a dinner at which pastors and representative laymen discuss plans for concerted church work. Budgets, attendance and miscellaneous activities are all increasing steadily. And there is harmony and genuine co-operation in that city.

not to mention law, order, morals, education and civic progress.

"And the denomination running all this?" some inquirer may ask. Well, the chairman of the church promotion organization is a Protestant, the secretary is a Catholic, and the largest contributor is a Jew.

TWO NEEDED ELECTION CHANGES.

There is at least one ballot reform to which the next General Assembly should give its thoughtful attention and consideration.

On the big twelve column ballot which was handed to voters when they went to the polls there were three long columns, the last three on the 'blanket, which contained the name of only one candidate in each column. This meant an enormous extra expense for white paper in the printing of the millions of ballots over the state, in addition to making the ballot all the more bulky and inconvenient to handle.

Every man who wants to run for office should be entitled to full consideration, but it hardly seems right that the public should be called on to bear the expense of giving a single candidate a whole column. There should be some sort of consolidation in the interest of economy. Why not put all independent candidates in one column?

Another thing the legislature should do is to make possible for women over 21 years of age to register and vote by simply declaring under oath that they are over 21, rather than requiring them to give their exact age. This is all that is required when a marriage license is secured. Why should more be required in voting? Many good women are sensitive in the matter of giving their age and refrain from registering and voting on that account. —Rockford Register-Gazette.

Two Americans desiring to visit Russia got as far as Riga. Here they made immediate application for visas. After waiting three months their applications have been refused and they have started for home. They were informed that no longer will visas be issued to Americans until our government recognizes the Russian soviet government. It's too bad. But they don't want any more American reds to be cured by a visit to their land.

"It's the prizes," she exclaimed to Mrs. John.

"Hello, Nancy and Nick," called Jack and Jill when Dady Gander's magic dust-pan had settled obligingly before the front porch of the House-That-Jack-Built.

"Hello!" cried the Twins, jumping off the dust-pan and hurrying up the steps where kind Mrs. John, Jack's mother, waited in the doorway.

Daddy Gander tucked his magic dust-pan under his arm (for it had shrunk again into a proper-sized dust-pan) and called out, "I'm going home to get tidied up for the party. What time is it to be, Mrs. John? Mrs. Gose and I don't want to be late."

"The Riddle Lady isn't here yet," answered Mrs. John, "and when she comes I suppose she'll have to rest awhile. I think two o'clock will be about right. It's to be a garden party, or rather an orchard party. I can't get all the people into our little house. Everybody will be here."

"They surely will, when there are riddles to guess," laughed Daddy Gander. Good-bye.

No sooner had Daddy gone than the Riddle Lady arrived in her coach and four.

After her came a footman carrying a large box. "It's the prizes," she explained to Mrs. John. "What is a riddle without a prize, I'd like to know."

"Do come in and take off your things," urged Mrs. John. "The biscuits and tea are getting cold. And I would like to get through, and the dishes cleared up before the company starts to come."

"Of course! Of course!" said the Riddle Lady nastily. "Here I am keeping everybody waiting."

"Well as for that," said Mrs. John setting the chairs around, "I suppose everybody will be keeping you waiting after while."

Well, everything went along very nicely, and after while lunch was over and the dishes cleared up and the guests began to arrive.

When everybody was there—even Sleepy Head and Slow and Simple Simon, the Riddle Lady gave out her first riddle.

This was it:

"Sometimes I'm made of feathers,
Sometimes I'm made of silk,
Sometimes I'm black as furnace coal,
And sometimes white as milk."

"Sometimes I'm made of paper
That brings the daily news,
Sometimes of parchment painted o'er,
With flowers and birds and views."

"Sometimes I'm carried proudly
To theaters and balls,
But sometimes just to decorate
The mantelpiece and walls."

"But mostly Chinese use me,
Or maids in far Japan,
There is no doubt you know my name,
You've often seen a —."

That was the riddle and Nancy guessed it right off.

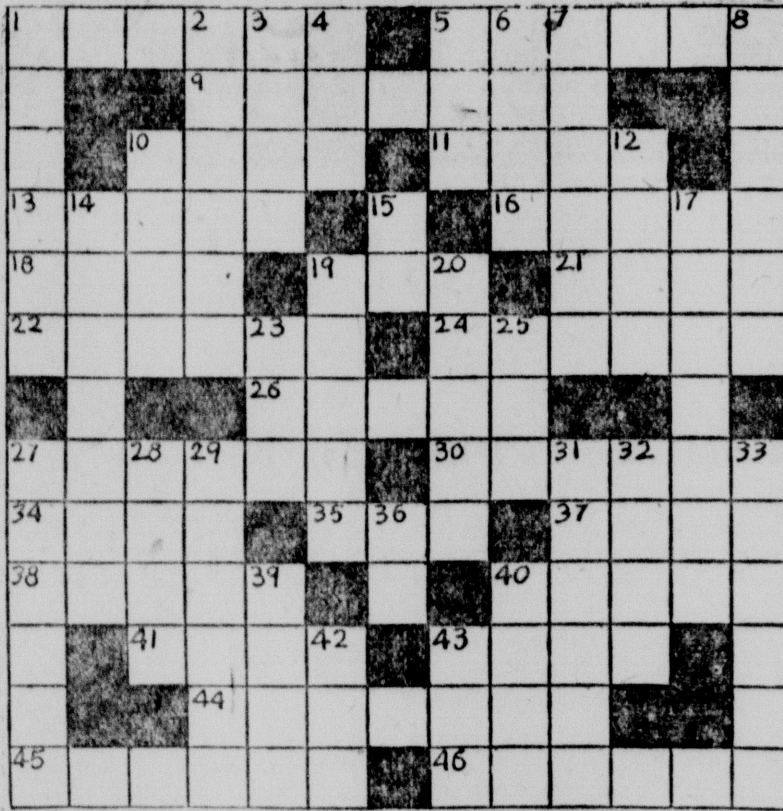

"It's a fan, isn't it?" she said quickly.

It was, and she got the prize. The cutest fan you ever saw with a tassel on the handle.

A Romance of the Spanish Main CAPTAIN BLOOD By RAFAEL SABATINI

Copyrighted, 1922, by Rafael Sabatini.

"CAPTAIN BLOOD," a Vitaphone picture with J. Warren Kerrigan in the title role, is an adaptation of this thrilling novel.

CHAPTER XXIV CARTAGENA

Having crossed the Caribbean in the teeth of contrary winds, it was not until the early days of April that the French fleet hove in sight of Cartagena, and M. Rivarol summoned a council aboard his flagship to determine the method of assault.

"It is of importance, messieurs," he told them, "that we take the city by surprise, not only before it can put itself into a state of defense, but before it can remove its treasures inland. I propose to land a force sufficient to achieve this to the north of the city to-night after dark."

He was heard respectfully and approvingly by his officers, scornfully by Captain Blood. Blood was the only one amongst them who knew exactly what lay ahead. Two years ago he had himself considered a raid upon the place, and he had actually made a survey of it. The Baron's proposal was one to be expected from a commander whose knowledge of Cartagena was only such as might be derived from maps.

Geographically and strategically considered, it is a curious place. It stands almost four-square, screened east and north by hills, and it may be said to face south upon the inner of two harbors by which it is normally approached. The entrance to the outer harbor, which is in reality a lagoon some three miles across, lies through a neck known as the Boca Chica—or Little Mouth—and defended by a fort. A long strip of densely wooded land to westward acts here as a natural breakwater, and as the inner harbor is approached, another strip of land thrusts across at right angles from the first, to ward the mainland on the east. Just short of this it ceases, leaving a deep but very narrow channel, a veritable gateway, into the secure and sheltered inner harbor. Another fort defends this second passage. East and north of Cartagena lies the mainland, which may be left out of account. But to the west and northwest this city, so well guarded on every other side, lies directly open to the sea. It stands back beyond a half-mile of beach, and besides this and the stout walls which fortify it, would appear to have no other defenses.

It remained for Captain Blood to explain the difficulties when M. de Rivarol informed him that the honor of opening the assault in the manner which he prescribed was to be accorded to the buccaneers.

Captain Blood smiled sardonically at the honor reserved for his men. It was precisely what he would have expected. For the buccaneers the dangers, for M. de Rivarol the honor, glory and profit of the enterprise.

"It is an honor which I must decline," said he quite coldly. Whereupon he granted approval and Hagthorpe and Yerville nodded. "I will not lead my men into fruitless danger."

"Look you, M. le Capitaine, since you are afraid to undertake this thing, I will myself undertake it," M. de Rivarol declared. "If I do so, I shall have a word to say to you to-morrow when you may not like. I am being very generous with you, sir. You have leave to go."

It was sheer obstinacy and empty pride that drove him, and he received the lesson he deserved. Close upon fifty lives were lost in the adventure, together with half a dozen boats stored with ammunition and light guns. The Baron went back to his flagship an infuriated, but by no means a wiser man.

He was awakened at dawn by the rolling thunder of guns. Emerging upon the poop in nightcap and slippers, he beheld a sight that increased his unreasonable and unreasoning fury. The four buccaneer ships under canvas were half a mile off the Boca Chica and little more than half a mile from the remainder of the fleet, and from their flanks flame and smoke were belching each time they swung broadside to the great round fort that guarded that narrow entrance. The fort, although returning the fire vigorously and viciously, was suffering badly. Yet for all their maneuvering the buccaneers were not escaping punishment. The starboard gunwale of the Atropos had been hammered into splinters, and a shot had caught her stern in the coach. The Elizabeth was badly battered about the forecabin, and the Arabella's mainmast had been shot away, whilst towards the end of that engagement the Lachesis came reeling out of the fight with a shattered rudder, steering herself by sweeps. There was a terrific explosion; half the fort went up in fragments. A lucky shot from the buccaneers had found the powder magazine.

It may have been a couple of hours later when Captain Blood, as spruce and cool as if he had just come from a levee, stepped upon the quarter-deck of the Victorieuse, to confront M. de Rivarol, still in bedgown and nightcap.

"I have to report, M. le Baron, that we are in possession of the fort on Boca Chica. The standard of France is flying from what remains of its tower, and the way into the outer harbor is open to your fleet."

"You behold there the scene of our coming action. It is spread before you like a map."

Blood pointed out the fort at the mouth of the inner harbor and offered a plan of certain victory with Cartagena's gold insured the invaders.

At noon on the morrow, shorn of defenses and threatened with bombardment, Cartagena sent offers of surrender to M. de Rivarol. The plunder was enormous. In the course of four days over a hundred mules laden with gold went out of the city and down to the boats waiting at the beach to convey the treasure aboard the ships.

CHAPTER XXV THE HONOUR OF M. DE RIVAROL

During the capitulation and for some time after, Captain Blood and the greater portion of his buccaneers had been at their post on the heights of Nuestra Señora de la Pampa, utterly in ignorance of what was taking place. Resentment smouldered amongst his men for a while, to flame out violently at the end of that week in Cartagena. It was only by undertaking to voice their grievance to the Baron that their captain was able for the moment to pacify them. That done, he went at once in quest of M. de Rivarol.

"M. le Baron, I must speak frankly; and you must suffer it. My men are on the point of mutiny. They demand to know when this sharing of the spoil is to take place, and when they are to receive the fifth for which their articles provide. The men know that it exceeds the enormous total of forty millions. They insist that the treasure itself be produced and weighed in their presence. I warn you that unless you yield to a demand that I consider just and therefore upheld, you may look for trouble, and it would not surprise me if you never leave Cartagena at all, nor convey a single gold piece home to France."

"Am I to understand that you are threatening me?"

"You do not know the ways of buccaneers. If you persist, Cartagena will be drenched in blood, and whatever the outcome the King of France will not have been well served."

The end of it all was that M. de Rivarol gave a promise at once to make the necessary preparations, and if Captain Blood and his officers would wait upon him on board the Victorieuse tomorrow morning, the treasure should be produced, weighed in their presence and their fifth share surrendered there and then into their own keeping.

Among the buccaneers that night there was hilarity over the sudden abatement of M. de Rivarol's monstrous pride. But when the next dawn broke over Cartagena, they had the explanation of it. The only ships to be seen in the harbour were the Arabella and the Elizabeth riding at anchor and the Atropos and the Lachesis careened on the beach for repair of the damage sustained in the bombardment. The French ships were gone.

Blood was reduced to despair. If he followed now, Heaven knew what would happen to the town. Unable to reach a decision, his own men and Hagthorpe's took the matter off his hands, eager to give chase to Rivarol.

MUSIC LEADING FEATURE RADIO FANS' PROGRAMS

Writer Says Surveys Show It Most Popular Detail.

The dominating feature of radio is music.

This outstanding fact has become firmly established and is highly significant both to the music trade and to the general public.

There can no longer be any doubt but what the great majority of people regardless of how much they may like certain other features of broadcast programs, rely upon music as the major item of their radio diet.

The music trade has already sensed this fact. Nearly 85 per cent of the music dealers in the United States either operate radio departments now or plan to do so in the near future. A survey recently made by A. F. Carter for a well-known music trade publication, disclosed that already 56 per cent of the dealers handle radio, and that 85 per cent now have or contemplate handling it at an early date.

Sale of radio products is becoming a major factor in the music trade in proportion to the extent to which sound merchandising methods are established and service and allied problems solved.

The writer is convinced that the radio manufacturers themselves have an important part to play in bringing about more adequate and satisfactory distribution of their products through music dealers.

He is equally convinced that leading manufacturers of the substantial and reliable type realize this fact and are actively preparing to co-operate with the trade on an effective basis.

Pen and Pencil Becoming Tools of Illinois Miners

Taylorville, Ill.—Pen and pencil nightly replace the pick and shovel of coal digger pupils enrolled in the educational department of Sub-District Five, United Mine Workers of America, which has its headquarters here. Organized last convention time on recommendation of President William Deach, the department has proved its success by turning out more than two hundred miners as graduates of the first course.

Most of the work is done by the miners in their own homes, but they come together in seven different localities, Taylorville, Hillsboro, Panama, Nokomis, Pana, Kincaid and Toxey, twice a month.

The first course included essay writing, public speaking and study of American history, economic growth of the country, and study of the old world countries from which the American settlers came. There were also two classes making a scientific study of coal.

Tangible results are seen in the compositions written by the class members. Subjects selected included early Greek civilization, Socrates, the fall of the Roman Empire, Christianity, and the Crusades. Some of the five minute speeches, instructors say, would do credit to a public speaking class any where.

As a result of this activity, Geo. Reid, a young miner of Stonington has been sent from one of the classes to Brookwood Labor college in New York.

Because some outside financial as-istance has been received from the American Fund for Public Service, local high school teachers have been employed to hold the classes exclusively for elementary English and composition.

WHAT is it produces that wonderful thrill that you get watching for ball teams play? There's nothing I know of that's apt to instill the spirit that grasps you that way.

From start until finish there's tense in the air. It never lets up for a minute. You shiver inside at the do and the dare and the punch that the players put in it.

The quarterback's injured; there's quiet a while. Then the spectators ring out his name. They've helped him recover and then, with a smile he rushes back into the game.

There's rush and there's fight as the game goes along and there's cheer when a play is complete. The mob's sympathetic when something goes wrong and they cheer even the team in defeat.

What is it produces that wonderful thrill? There's only one answer I truth. It's something that spirit is bound to instill—the manliness born of youth.

"ZUP," WILCE RIVALRY KEEN AS EVER NOW

aturday Game to See
Resumption of Old
Battle of "Pals."

Urbana.—That Zupke-Wilce rivalry which annually proves the most thrilling among football mentors in the Big Ten, will be renewed November 22 for the twelfth time when Illinois and Ohio State clash here for the game of the season, the tilt which usually upsets the dope and provides more thrills than any other. For the Zupke-Wilce in the past decade have decided the Big Ten championship eight times. "Zup" wins three titles undisputed in 1914, 1915 and 1919 and two ties in 1915 and 1916. Dr. Jack won the gonfalon in 1916, 1917 and 1920. During this time the Illinois coach beat his rival six times, lost to him four years, tied once, in 1916.

Wilce is bent on tying up the series this year. He succeeded in two years when Ollie Klee dashed 60 yards through a broken field for the only score of the game in the last quarter, but run made the count four-all. "Zup" broke the deadlock last year when "Red" Grange scored on a national sprint through the Buckeye defense.

In 1920 Wilce's Bucks won the national conference title by a margin of 10-0 as the final whistle blew. He put the two mentors on even terms, but the Orange and Blue coach came back in 1921 and spoiled the Illinois title hopes by another last minute win.

The dope bucket is usually upset by the Illinois ends and the ends are coming here to see what will happen this year. Tickets are selling fast, but the chances are all against a sellout so don't believe in one. Even the latest comings will be taken care of.

Urbana.—Two years of experience have demonstrated that the Memorial stadium at the University of Illinois is neither too large nor too small, George Huff, director of athletics at the university has concluded, after studying attendance figures for the last 10 years.

The stadium was designed with expansion in view, so that its capacity may be increased, if necessary, to 80,000 and later to 100,000 without spoiling the architectural effect.

Jim Jeffries was fast for a big man. The ballplayer could run the hundred in close to 10 seconds.

Experiments in California, Texas and New York prove that night golf is practicable.

Very often backfield men who star on offense are weak defensively. Even Grange is far from a wonder on defense.

Joe Hauser, first sacker for the Athletics, is one of the hardest hitters in the majors.

Tony Rego is the wisest of the St. Louis Browns' trio of catchers, say the pitchers of that team, but he can't hit.

For a pennant winning ball club, the New York Giants are very weak back of the plate. McGraw seeks a star backstop. He will probably get him.

Great interference, poor work by the Michigan ends and Grange's speed all contributed to the four touchdowns scored in 12 minutes by the Illinois star.

Oakland, Calif.—Walter Johnson, Washington's veteran pitcher, and George Weiss, owner of the New Haven baseball club, have completed plans to take over the Oakland club of the Pacific Coast baseball league.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, Nov. 18.—Word that Walter Johnson had practically completed a deal for part ownership of the Oakland club of the Pacific Coast League was received by Washington with regret that he would not pitch the Senators to victory again, mingled with sincere good wishes for him in his enterprise.

President Griffith and Manager Harris agreed that Johnson's departure means a big loss to the Washington team but for the veteran star's sake they were glad he was about to realize his hopes.

Griffith, when informed of the developments, reiterated that he would not stand in Johnson's way, but would give him his release from the Washington team if he received assurance that the veteran "had nego-

Game and Fish News by C. F. Mansfield Jr. Secy. The Federated Sportsmen of Illinois

By C. F. MANSFIELD, Secy.
Federated Sportsmen of Illinois
Springfield, Ill., Nov. 18.—Sportsmen and conservationists were urged to work for the passage of the Game Refuge Public Shooting Grounds bill by representative Robert Scholes of Peoria in an interview yesterday.

As the title of the bill indicates, it provides for purchase by the Federal authorities, of game sanctuaries, and rest grounds for migratory birds, and at the same time provides for shooting grounds where any man carrying a federal license may hunt, subject, of course, to such regulations as may be necessary.

According to Mr. Scholes this legislation if passed will mark a great stride towards maintaining the American ideals of sport for all, in contrast to the European system where only the wealthy have an interest in the game or are permitted to shoot.

Such a condition is rapidly developing in the U. S. and, if immediate action is not taken to secure large areas of land for conservation of our game as well as providing a reasonable amount of sport for all of us, all hunting will soon be in the hands of a very few wealthy clubs.

This bill comes up for a vote at the next session of Congress in December. All expense of purchase of land, control and maintenance will be borne by the hunters without one cent added to general taxes. Write your Senator and Representative in Congress at once, enclosing a marked copy of this newspaper and tell him that you want them to support this bill.

At the next session of the Illinois Legislature the sportsmen will submit a similar plan for Illinois, but the passage of this federal law must come first. Get behind this finest piece of conservation legislation ever introduced in State or Nation; and see that it becomes a law.

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRES-
COTT TO RUTH BURKE

I sometimes wonder, dear Ruth, if in ever life there falls the little trials and big tribulations that have fallen into yours and mine.

Some years ago I visited Longfellow's home. It was a gusty rainy day in the fall and outside there hung a clinging vine which swayed and moaned in the wind. I have never forgotten it and again and again when I have been unhappy I have thought of the poet sitting there in his study writing:

"The vine still clings to the mouldering wall,
But at every gust the dead leaves fall,
And the day is dark and dreary."
The last stanza of that poem has always been a great comfort to me. You remember it—

I am not sure, dear, that such men do not make more unhappiness in the world than those who plan to do some horrible act. The things that are planned are usually against one person whom one hates with an unholy hatred, while the selfish impulses are showered on friend and foe alike, if either friend or foe interferes with the moment's desire. One hundred and fifty members of Rochelle Post No. 403, American Legion, ex-service men, G. A. R. veterans, "Y" men and guests enjoyed the annual banquet of the American Legion held in the Woodman Hall, Thursday evening, November 13th, at 6:30. Distinguished guests present were: Rev. Father Joseph Lonnergan, national chaplain of the American Legion, of Durand; Howard P. Savage, Commander of the Department of Illinois, Chicago; and Roy Swannell, of the Service Department, of Chicago, and the local clergy.

Thirty chickens, (one hundred and fifty pounds of fried chicken) mashed potatoes, glibet gravy, cranberry jelly, hot rolls, coffee, peas, celery, fruit salad, ice cream and cake furnished a splendid banquet.

Post Commander Malden Barker presided as toast master.

The first speaker was State Commander Savage. Mr. Savage stated that there were 700 posts in the state. He announced that the state department had undertaken two definite lines of action.

First he defined as our sacred duty of caring for our less fortunate comrades. Mr. Savage stated that there were 55,000 men with active claims against the government in the state of Illinois. 2,500 men in hospitals need the help of the organized Legion. This year, six years after the war, 18 service men were adjudged insane in Cook county. We will not reach the peak in nerve and tuberculosis cases until 1932.

Second, Commander Savage indicated was the duty of the Legion and the Women's Auxiliaries to maintain the Orphans' Home at Normal, Illinois where 112 babies and children of ex-service men are being reared as the children of heroes.

The only other problem before the department of Illinois is that of Americanism—to see that the principles of loyalty are inculcated in children in out schools. He pleaded for organized help in counteracting and wiping out the spread of the cancerous growth of communism which has 600,000 members in Chicago. The state organization is going to ask the state of Illinois for an appropriation for $750,000 for the maintaining, enlarging of hospitals and the orphanage.

Father Lonnergan reminded the local post that no matter how strong the legion is nationally its real strength lies in the community. "We are organized to carry on the spirit of comradeship to the next generation," declared the speaker. Father Lonnergan stated that the foundation of our government was based on Freedom, and that we must develop sympathy, spread patriotism and hold the spirit of unity. He pleaded for an intelligent preparedness and spoke of the advocacy of the national organization for the passage of a bill by universal conscription of men, money and industry in the event of future wars.

The annual meeting of Rochelle Post was held after the address.

The report of Finance Officer William T. Hayes showed the post to be in excellent financial condition with $100.00 in state bonds and about $1,600 in savings account with a net profit for the year of $235.00. The carnival showed a profit of $996.00; the show $249.60; and the Lyceum course a loss of $419.00.

The annual election of officers resulted as follows: Commander, C. A. Anderson; Senior Vice Commander, Dr. Robert E. Stevens; Junior Vice Commander, B. F. Paley; Sergeant-at-Arms, Arthur Helness; Finance Officer, Robert Dall; Chaplain, W. J. Furlong; trustees to succeed themselves, C. E. Kepner and Fred E. Gardner.

The post voted to send the following night letter to Adjutant Joyce B. Weeks, care of Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, Ward A Main, Boston, Mass: "Rochelle Post in annual meeting extends best wishes for your speedy convalescence. State Commander Savage and National Chaplain Lonnergan here. Election, Anderson, Commander; Dr. Stevens and Paley, Vice Commanders; Dall, Finance Officer; Helness, Sergeant at Arms; Furlong, chaplain. Fellows missed you."

The post also voted to send a formal letter of thanks to the Auxiliary for the banquet.

The new officers will be installed at the first meeting in December. The sugar beet harvest at Rochelle

FARMER COMING OUT OF HIS BAD TIMES SAYS PRES.

Head of National Farm
Union Sees Better Times Ahead.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Oklahoma City, Okla., Nov. 18—For four years the farmers of the country have suffered cruelly and sustained losses which only can be absorbed in their capital account, but they are now coming out of the depression, President Charles S. Barrett declared in his annual address here today before the National Farmers Union.

A $40,000,000,000 loss was suffered by agriculture since 1920-21 and in a single year 1,200,000 farming people were driven from their homes and forced to take refuge in the city, he declared. Those facts constitute the real reason for the exodus from the farms and explain, he said, why many state and county officials have found it so difficult to collect taxes during the last four years and why there have been so many foreclosures.

"It is clear that in some manner our own federal government has been to blame," Mr. Barrett asserted. "It dismantled its war production machinery without making provision for readjustments; but encourage farmers to continue their maximum efforts of production even into the crop of 1920. Then came the fear at Washington of inflation tendencies. That was followed by a drastic depression policy inaugurated by the Federal Reserve Board. Then the crash came. On top of this came the raising of freight rates for which the federal government was responsible and which put farmers of the mid-west at a great disadvantage."

The Farmers National Union's co-operative enterprises in many state are in a flourishing condition, Mr. Barrett said.

He recounted the activities of the union's representatives at Washington and enumerated among matters the union would undertake the following:

"Passage of the truth-in-fabric bill, 'Legislation to protect farmers' interests by providing for truthful and adequate branding of seeds, feeds and fertilizers when shipped."

"Legislation to provide for more adequate market reports of the department of agriculture."

"Prevention through legislation of discrimination by manufacturers and financial interests against farmers who wish to buy collectively."

Correct Clothes To Meet The Obligation Of Every Occasion

Field Oxford, Moccasin Type

Differing from gloves at one end, which are indivisibly bound up with days and deeds of chivalry, there is no romance about shoes at the other end. They take the bumps and thumps of hard pavements and get no thanks for it. Indeed, they must always remain content to be looked down on. Yet, no article of wear is more important to smart appearance than a man's shoe. It is the very foundation of style and comfort. If your feet are on your mind, it cannot be at ease. Your hat, or cravat, or glove, or suit, or overcoat needs no special attention to preserve its good looks, but like hair and teeth, shoes must be "groomed" every day.

Most men possess far too few shoes in proportion to other accessories of dress. Aside from sporting types, they should own black shoes and tan shoes; low shoes and high shoes; plain shoes and brogue or semi-brogue shoes, as well as patent leather shoes for formal occasion and water-proof shoes for wet weather. Many common foot troubles are directly traceable to wearing the same shoes every day. One's feet are confined in a single mould, whereas a mere change of shoes affords immediate relief by varying and distributing the pressure.

Always be mindful that nothing a man wears undergoes such rough-and-tumble usage as his shoes. Your hat rests upon your head and your suit or overcoat rests upon your shoulders, but your weight rests upon your shoes. Therefore, don't think so much of the sum you pay for shoes as of the something you get. Style, comfort and long wear, which are desirable in every article of dress, are doubly desirable in shoes.

There is one inextinguishable foot print that the noble redskin has left upon the sands of time, and that is the moccasin. Originally, it was cut in one piece of soft deer-skin with a flexible sole, the upper being colorfully embroidered or brilliantly beaded in tribe colors. Pilgrim trappers and traders improved it somewhat, but no ingenuity of civilized man has appreciably bettered the splendid moccasin of the North American Indian.

Sport has now taken the moccasin type of shoe for its own. It is reproduced here. The upper is made of soft-tanned cowhide; the sole is grooved rubber or the new English crepe rubber which cannot slip. The heel may be regular, as shown, or the so-called spring heel.

Too Many Traffic Laws

Say Nat'l Auto Officer

By NEA Service

Indianapolis—There are too many traffic laws.

That is the belief expressed by C. C. Hanch, vice president of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, in an address here.

"American cities are placing the chief burden of traffic on their already over-worked police forces," said Hanch. "Instead of making studies of transportation needs and planning the routing of traffic and improvements on the basis of these studies."

"Every large city needs a traffic commission to study its railroad, electric and motor vehicle facilities and to map out plans of operation on a basis of maximum efficiency and service."

"The opening up of a few streets in many cities and the economic routing of commercial vehicle traffic will be helpful both to shipper and public."

Speed is a relative matter, depending upon the time of day, the place and the condition of road and weather. What we need most is not the clamping down of an arbitrary speed law, but the quick and safe dispatching of traffic at rates of speed suitable to the conditions.

"We need more parking. Instead of more 'no parking.' Facilities at cost should be provided for the all-day parker, and everyone should be permitted to leave his machine at a given place long enough to attend to reasonable errands. Constructive rather than repressive traffic programs should be every city's goal."

A SUGGESTION.

The Affair at Flower Acres

© 1924 by NEA Service Inc. WELLS

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Douglas Raynor is found shot through the heart in the early evening on the floor of the sun room of Flower Acres, his Long Island home. Standing over the dead man, pistol in hand, is Malcolm Finley, former sweetheart of Raynor's wife, Nancy. Eva Turner, Raynor's nurse, stands by the light switch. Then Nancy, her brother, Orville Kent, Ezra Goddard, friend of Finley, Miss Mattie, Raynor's sister, and others enter the room. Pennington Wise, a celebrated detective, and Zizi, a girl assistant, are called to take the case out of the hands of Detective Dobbins. The print of an overshoe on the floor of the sun room heightens the mystery. Now Zizi and Dolly Ray, a neighbor's girl, go to the house of Grim Gannon, a servant, on the pretense of looking at his collection of butterfly flies.

Now GO ON WITH THE STORY But Zizi was after something other than butterflies. After a cautious glance outside at the old man, she shook a warning forefinger at Dolly and began to poke around among the litter that was piled in corners or on tables and settees. Then she opened the cupboard door, and with a look of disgust on her face, grabbed an umbrella and poked among the shoes and slippers that were flung in there in an untidy heap.

With the umbrella she dragged out one old shoe after another, and, at last, with a suppressed cry of triumph, she pulled out a shiny overshoe.

It was a man's rubber, and a new one—of the type called slip-ons. That is, it had almost no upper. It was little more than a sole, with a narrow rim of rubber to hold it on the foot.

A little more poking brought forth its mate, and Zizi kicked the other rubbish back into the closet, and picked up her find with eagerness. "The rubbers," she whispered. "The very ones!"

"Oh, my!" Dolly said, clasping her little hands in dismay. "Then old Gannon is the murderer. After all, I'm so sorry"—and the child broke into tears.

"Hush up," said Zizi, shaking her. "Don't let him hear. We must take these to Mr. Wise at once. Come along."

She didn't especially want Dolly's company, but still less did she dare leave her there where she might divulge the secret of Zizi's find, and which Zizi was determined should remain a secret until she could tell Wise about it.

The finding of the rubbers was merely the last resort of a long hunt. Zizi had looked everywhere. They must be proved up by the print on the sun room floor—and then—

Zizi easily concealed the rubbers in her capacious coat pockets, and beckoning Dolly they left the room. She paused on the porch to speak to Gannon, with intent to learn if he had any suspicion of her real errand to his room.

Apparently he had not, for he only said, "Well, girls, see the butterflies!"

"Yes," Zizi returned, "and they're wonderful. Shall you collect more or is your stock complete?"

"I'll get more from South America, when I go down there. I'm going to get off as soon as I can get my money from those lawyers."

Dolly looked at him, open-mouthed. How could this man, who had killed his benefactor, speak so casually of getting away with the money he had so fearfully come by?

"You must miss Mr. Raynor," Zizi said.

"I do," Gannon returned, and his glance at her was equally sharp. "He was a life-long friend, almost—"

"Yes, an uncertain friend."

"Uncertain is the word, ma'am," and Gannon looked reminiscent.

"Now, Raynor'd be as nice and friendly as one could wish, and then again he'd be the very dickens and all—"

ELIMINATE SCRATCHES

Scratches on a finely polished automobile can be eliminated by applying several coats of this shellac until the scratch has been completely filled. When the last coat has dried, it should be rubbed with crocus cloth and a little olive oil. A rubdown with a good body polish will render the touch-up inconspicuous and restore the surface to its original appearance.

PEKING, CITY WITHIN CITY, NOW DESCRIBED

Interesting Story of Chinese Capital is Given By Writer.

Washington, D. C.—Peking, where the Imperial Palace is reported to have been invaded by troops of the Provisional Government, is described in the following bulletin from the Washington, D. D., headquarters of the National Geographic Society:

"Peking is a city within a city." "As one passes within the walls he expects to find banners, signs of shopkeepers, instead he beholds broad avenues three miles long, making squares as regular as those of a checkerboard.

"Then the visitor begins to suspect that Peking is the one spacious Chinese city because it is not a Chinese city at all, but a Tartar city, built by adventurous barbarians of the north.

Location of the Dragon Throne. "The Chinese portion of the city, dating back to 1552, is the commercial center. The Tartar city is about 200 years older, and it is the Tartar city which included the famous 'Forbidden City,' of which the Dragon Throne of the Son of Heaven, Emperor of the Middle Kingdom, is the center.

"The famous throne is of rare wood, exquisitely carved. Behind it is a screen of golden lacquer so daintily in design that it seems a bit of filmy lace. Around this throne room are the palaces, shut in by purple walls.

"The streets of Peking reflect the city's infinite variety. Every thoroughfare is alive with beasts and vehicles and humans. A Medley of Traffic. "Down the smooth, tree-lined roads go automobiles, cabs, rickshaws, and bicycles, all speeding past the slower moving catafalques and wedding processions on the sides. Between sidewalks and trees, along a highway of turf, go mule-mounted equestrians, soldiers in sturdy Manchurian ponies, triplets of donkeys hauling lumber, brick, coal, and crockery, portly old gentlemen straddling diminutive asses, blue-canopied Peking cabs, and caravans of camels out of the north.

"Imagine a city where camels go up and down the streets upon legitimate business, not in a circus parade! The visitor strolls along Hatanen Street after breakfast, and there they are, on their knees, blinking in the morning sun—fine shaggy, brown beasts, on occasional white one—rather dirty white—among them, chewing their rinds in leisure. The pavement before the shops whether they have carried merchandise has been their caravanary for the night. There are dozens upon dozens of them lining the sidewalk, up the street and down.

The Camels and Carts. "By and by the drivers come forth, throw their empty sacks between the humps of the animals, rouse them, and lead them off down the street, slowly and softly stepping, in single file, out beneath the great stone arches of Hata Gato, then westward beside the frowning buttresses of the city wall.

"Almost as fascinating as the camels are the carts of Peking, or rather the little beasts which pull them—ponies, donkeys, mules, and homestead, elusive creatures that are neither horse, mule, nor ass, but subtle, indistinguishable mixtures. On first sight one is sure they are horses, on the second he is sure they are mules, on the third he is equally sure they are zebras with the stripes worn off. One historian of China speaks of the ancient Tartars as possessing horses, asses, mules, and other peculiar breeds of the equine family. These ancient other breeds still trot about the Tartar city."

Milk and Butter

Segis Pietertje Prospect, champion milk cow of the world, is so good she exceeded her own world's record. And that first record of 35,550.4 pounds of milk and 1416.5 pounds of butter has not yet been surpassed by any other cow! Her latest record is 3,331.4 pounds of milk and 1448.6 pounds of butter. She has averaged more than 47 quarts of milk a day for two years. The cow, a Holstein-Friesian, is owned by Carnation Milk Farms at Seattle, Wash.

Use of Illinois Coal is Urged by States' Miners

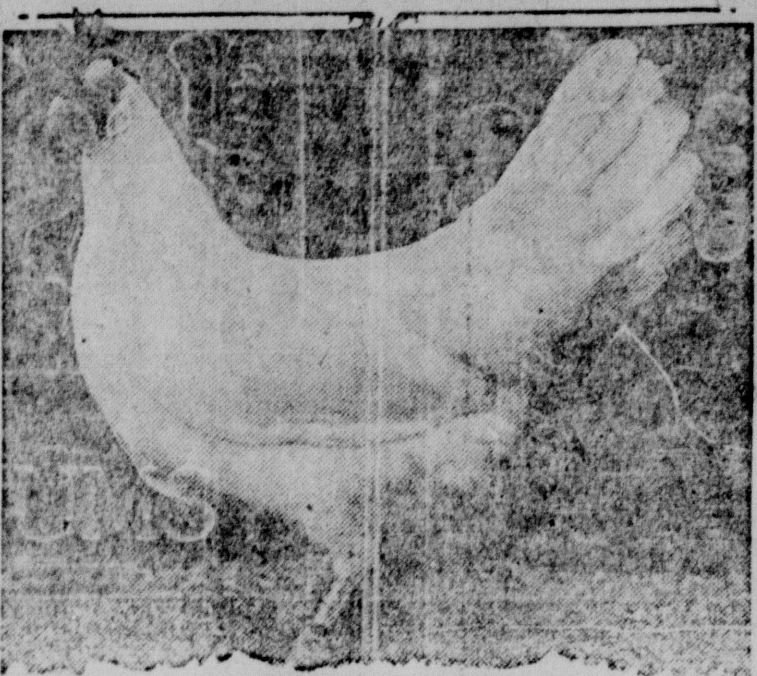

Springfield—Pointing to the fact that thousands of Illinois coal miners are still unemployed, officials of the Illinois Mine Workers have issued an appeal to miners and other unionists to join in a state-wide movement for the use of Illinois coal.

The State Executive Board, President Farrington announced, instructed Angus Kerr, the miners' chief counsel, to draw up a bill for introduction in the next General Assembly, providing for exclusive use of Illinois coal in state-owned institutions. Every trade union in the state, he further announced, has been mailed a copy of a resolution, embodying a statement of the attitude of union labor. The resolution alleges that "in some instances, municipalities and state owned institutions of Illinois are being furnished with coal mined outside the state of Illinois," and adds that "we believe it is wrong for the taxpayers' money to be sent outside the state of Illinois to purchase any product which can be furnished in abundance in the state, and we believe that the policy of trading at home should be practiced by the state of Illinois, especially within the state, and produced by Illinois labor."

About 60 per cent of the population of western Canada resides on farms.

Egg Production

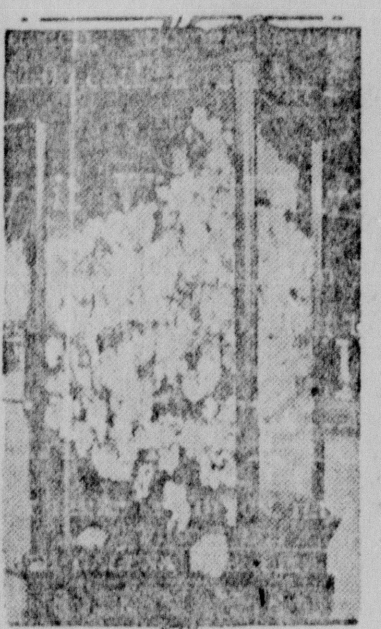

The long distance egg-laying championship is held by this hen. She's Lady Purdue, a White Leghorn owned by Purdue University at Lafayette, Ind. She passed the record when she laid her 1341st egg. During her seven years of life she has averaged 178 eggs annually. All her eggs were trapped.

Seeds

Of all young farmers who "know what they sow," John T. Wilk of Alma, Mich., is said to be the best. In a contest at the Michigan state fair at Detroit he correctly identified 37 out of 50 grain seeds.

Cotton

Grown in the center of a weevil infested district, this cotton stalk shows what can be done despite the pest. It contains 700 bolls. John B. Broadwell of Alpharetta, Ga., grew it.

A Little Dope on Paraffine

Washington, D. C.—A hostess who serves preserves or jellies, and graces her table with candles, would be surprised to learn that she owes these adjuncts, and perhaps the matches which light the candles, to "a wax that smells."

"Such, however," according to a bulletin of the National Geographic Society, "is a translation of the Greek words which make the name of the mineral, ozocerite. And ozocerite is one source of the paraffine of commerce—a commodity extensively used in the preserving of fruits, and in making candles, some kinds of matches, waterproof paper, floor polish, shoe polish and dolls.

Two Plantlike Minerals

"Ozocerite is as curious a mineral as asbestos. The former is valuable chiefly because it won't burn, and because it won't melt, and because, contrary to its name, in its purified state it is odorless. Both minerals have their origin from mines. Asbestos resembles beeswax, indeed it has been termed a 'mountain wax' and was first known as 'mountain fats.'

"Until the World War period there was just one source of ozocerite. That was in the mines near Boryslaw, a town of some 10,000 people, in Eastern Galicia.

"In 1914 nearly eight million pounds were imported into the United States. When this supply was sharply curtailed deposits in Utah were developed, but the Galician fields still hold their world supremacy in the commercial output.

A Product of Many Uses

"When this curious mineral comes out of the earth it varies from a jelly-like consistency to the hardness of gypsum. When it is refined it is known chemically as ceresin, or ozocerite paraffin, and when it gets into commerce in white, flat, odorless discs it takes on a final 'e' and is the paraffine of many household and manufacturing uses.

"Ozocerite is not the only source of paraffine. The commercial product comes from the paraffine, similar to ozocerite paraffin, obtained from distilling wood and coal. It also is a by-product of petroleum.

"The paraffin obtained from petroleum might well be termed an artifice-nal ozocerite because, in that event, man simply reproduces at high speed a process similar to that by which nature makes the mineral. Chemically the natural ozocerite is believed to be formed when 'petroleum' evaporates and leaves in crevices and fissures a mixture of solid hydrocarbons.

"Not all petroleum contains paraffine. That which does yields paraffin oil which has helped make the tropics habitable for man. The oil forms a solid, impervious coating over stagnant ponds, just as the refined product does over preserved foods and thus prevents the breeding of mosquitoes, carriers of yellow fever and malaria. It shares with vaseline and other petroleum derivative, the rather dubious honor of being the basis of many 'hair restorers.'

In all the annals of dramatic production it remained for this picture to enter the world of sheer fancy where Magic Carpets rise above the housetops, Flying Horses bear their riders through the clouds, Magic Ropes ascend to the clouds, Magic Armies rise from earth at the gesture of an arm, strange monsters rise to engage wayfarers in battle and far undersea are strange beings. This entire production comes to Dixon with the New York investiture of scenery and effects. Oriental Lobby entertainment, Bagdad Coffee and the other novel features will be here, including a full NEW YORK SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA playing the specially written score. Try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound First. Proved Good Advice

Chicago, Illinois.—"Just a few lines to let you know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. I was married going on for three years, and went to a doctor and was taking treatments twice a week for pains every month. I used to lie in bed three or four days with them and the doctor would call and inject something into my arm to put me asleep so I would not feel the pains. At last she said I would have to be operated on if I wanted any children. Well, I just happened to go to see a friend with her first baby and I told her I was going to the hospital, and she said, 'Don't do it! You go and get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and you won't need any operation.' So my husband got me a bottle right away. Now I have two lovely children. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to every woman.
